NCBWA ANNOUNCES 2014 DIVISION I PRESEASON ALL-AMERICA TEAMS

14th annual NCBWA Preseason All-America Team
Features array of 2013 NCAA World Series Participants, National Standouts

FORT WORTH, Texas – With solid representation from defending baseball champion, UCLA, and 2013 runner-up, Mississippi State, the 14th annual National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association preseason All-America team premiers the top student-athletes from NCAA Division I, which opens the season in less than two months – on Feb. 14, 2014.

If the 155th season of intercollegiate baseball is anything like the previous campaign, the 2014 All-America units should shine for weeks leading up and into the NCAA DI World Series in Omaha, Neb., on June 14-24/25 and with strong-armed pitching in every corner. The Bruins and Bulldogs, in fact, have five players on all the first two squads, while 2013 NCAA World Series participants Indiana, Louisville, LSU, North Carolina, NC State, and Oregon State are represented by a total of 12 standouts on the three teams. In all, there are players from 17 conferences and 35 schools nationwide.

Returning first-team standouts from the post-2013 NCBWA All-America team are power-hitting Indiana catcher Kyle Schwarber (18 home runs for second-most among the honorees) and four pitchers (two starters, two relievers), who all held opposing hitters under .200 batting averages.

UCLA righty, 2013 CWS Most Outstanding Player and Team USA standout David Berg leads this pack with an NCAA-record 24 saves, 7-0 record and an 0.88 ERA. The other three returning first unit pitchers – Vanderbilt's Tyler Beede, Mississippi State's Jonathan Holder and LSU's Aaron Nola - were a combined 28-2 on the hill with 315 strikeouts and 21 saves by Holder.

Joining them on the elite first crew are starters Thomas Eshelman and Justin Garza of Cal State Fullerton, UC Irvine's Andrew Morales, and NC State's Carlos Rodon (A-A-leading 170 strikeouts in 118-plus innings pitched. 2013 postseason second team All-America relief man Nick Burdi of Louisville brings back 16 saves and an 0.78 ERA to compliment the six first-team rotation pitchers, who own a composite 69-7 record.

The first squad also has representation from three UC Irvine Anteaters – 1B Connor Spencer, 3B Taylor Sparks and Morales. They all come from the same California high school programs, which produced 2013 consensus All-America and Dick Howser Trophy winner, Kris Bryant of the University of San Diego.

The first team chosen by consultation with individual schools' media relations offices and the NCBWA All-America committee features returning post-2013 second team All-America designated hitter Nick Backlund of Mercer and 2013 SEC Freshman of the Year and Brooks Wallace Award winning SS Alex Bregman of LSU. Utility player Drew Reynolds of East Carolina adds a .322 batting average and 14 saves in 28 relief appearances.

The pitching-rich second squad boasts another sterling group of moundmen such as Big 12 Conference Pitcher of the Year Harrison Musgrave of West Virginia, Pac-12 Conference Freshman Pitcher of the Year and 14-game winner Andrew Moore of Oregon State, 12-1 starter Trent Thornton of UNC, and Mississippi State's Ross Mitchell, who led relief pitchers on all college levels with 13 wins as a sophomore.

These youngsters also are the core of nominees for the initial ballot for the 28th annual Dick Howser Trophy, presented by the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Area Chamber of Commerce and voted upon by the NCBWA membership. The Howser Trophy will be awarded in Omaha, Neb., June 13, 2014, prior to the opening of the 67th annual NCAA World Series.
